D. LOWENBERG'S EST.

Having cleared out a large surplus stoc of Over Coats we are now enabled to offer Big Bargains as follows:

$4.50	buys a	$6.00	Coat.
6.00	" "	8.00	"
8.00	" "	10.00	"
10.00	" "	13.00	"

That's the story we're telling you now. A depreciation in prices, not in quality.

$15.00 buys a $20.00 Satin Lined Chinchilla Over Coat.

Now we have a lot of Black Corkscrew Over Coats; also Wide Wales at $6.00 and upwards, while all wool Kerseys at $8.00, must be seen to be appreciated

Those Children's Over Coats at $1.50 are here again. Suits for little Boys at $1.25. We prefer to sell The Jerseys and other fine suits of which we have the largest assortment in town.

And here are the bigger Boys' Suits and Over Coats, some at low prices and some at lower.

Now we tell you that we will surprise you if you will only call and see the Big Bargains you can buy. A big assortment of Children's Pants and Waists for 25c. Do not be scared when we will sell you a Boys' Suit for $1.50, and a waist thrown in. When you come we will show you some other eye openers.

Storm Over Coats are so much reduced, we are ashamed to put the prices on paper, but we will tell you all about them when you come for one—and come pretty soon while we have a big assortment, for while we have not the largest store room in the county we have the largest stock of Clothing, Hats, Caps, Underwear, and everything for Men, Boys and Children's wear, while everybody will acknowledge that we are headquarters in Trunks, Bags, &c. Now we have posted you on our cheapest and lowest price goods, we want to tell you about our Rochester Tailor Made Clothing. There may not be so great a profit as in some of the cheap trash sold where you make a dollar and lose a customer that will not pay in the end, so we keep the best quality of goods, sell them at a small profit and give our customers the best of satisfaction.

Wide Wale Doulbe Breasted Prince Alberts.

Three Button Cutaways.
Straight Cut Sacks.

These are some of the latest and nicest styles of Rochester Made Clothing.

We have a few Double Breasted Sacks. Heavy Coats and Vests, just the thing to keep you warm.

Cardigan Jackets, a big line.
Scotch Caps for 25 cents.
Fur Caps for 1.50.

Don't forget the boys, little and big. Bring them right along for our coats and Winter Caps; they cost but little and you will be surprised how cheap you can rig them out for winter.

Gloves, Shirts, Neckwear, all of the latest stye.

A few Jersey Suits for children, to be cleared out cheap, as well as Over Coats for little boys.

All we ask is a visit before you buy and you certainly will be convinced that the oldest Clothing Store in town is still the place to buy your clothing.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, with its varied and excellent contents, is a library in itself.

It was indeed a happy thought to print an entire novel in each number.

Not a short novelette, but a long story such as you are used to get in book form and pay from one dollar to one dollar and a half for.

Not only that, but with each number you get an abundance of other contributions, which gives you a good magazine besides the novel.

The ringing blows which have been struck on the gateway of popular favor, have resounded throughout the entire land, and to-day Lippincott's Magazine stands in the front rank of monthly publications, and is the most widely-read-and-talked-of publication of its kind in the world. THE FOOT OF A RABBIT.

A WASHINGTON MAN WHO CARRIED ONE FOR GOOD LUCK.

He Fell Down Stairs, His Wife Became Ill, a Case Was Decided Against Him, and for a Whole Week Everything Went Wrong—Then He Threw It Away.

If a man ever tells you there is luck in a rabbit's foot, believe him if you want to, but don't let him, under any circumstances, present you with one as a souvenir to carry for luck. If he attempts it, be sure it is because he has a grudge against you, and desires to get even in a roundabout manner.

There may be good luck in some rabbits' feet, but the particular one which this story concerns was the quintessence of misfortune, and its possessor is a hollow eyed picture of despair, whose every movement has been productive of calamitous results.

Two weeks ago the owner of the charm was in the best of spirits and on good terms with himself and the world, and prospering. For a week the nightmare of ill luck has clung to him with the grasp of the old man of the sea, and cannot be shaken off.

AN UNHEEDED WARNING.

He came into the possession of the furry article which wrecked his happiness in a somewhat peculiar manner. It was presented to him as an emblem of luck by one of his friends, and he carefully tucked it away in his vest pocket. A third friend who was standing by remarked at the time: "If I were you I would throw that cursed thing as far as I could. It's certain to bring ill luck. I am usually not superstitious, but I wouldn't carry one for a thousand dollars."

The pessimist was heartily laughed at for his foolishness, and ridiculed as a prophet of bad luck. "Wait and see," was his laconic response to the other's badinage. Had that friend been listened to and his advice taken, this story would never have been written.

It was Saturday evening when the gift was received, but nothing eventful happened that day. When the possessor of the talisman went to bed he began to think of the words of warning he had listened to and it began to trouble him. He could not sleep for a time, and when he finally fell into a fitful doze it was only to see big and little rabbits' feet obstructing him and barring his progress in whatever direction he turned. They seemed to overwhelm him and crush him down, and when he awoke with a start it was to hear his wife calling him to breakfast. He arose, haggard and worn out. Sleep had been a burden rather than a rest, and in consequence he was snappish and out of humor.

The breakfast was a succession of growls. He grumbled at everything until finally his wife, who was unaccustomed to see him angry, anxiously inquired what was the matter. He gave her a curt reply, that sent the tears to her eyes and her lips to quivering, and left for his office without his usual farewell kiss, something he had never done before since his marriage.

It was Sunday, and, of course, none of his clerks were at work. He could not find any of the correspondence he desired, and this made him more angry. Finally he thought again of the rabbit's foot. "It must be that," he soliloquized, "but I'll keep it just for spite and see how far it will work its spell."

Coming down the stairs from his office, he slipped and fell, and badly sprained his wrist.

When he reached home his wife was sick, and so the doctor had two patients instead of one. Sunday night was but a repetition of the previous one, filled with bad dreams, and when the morning dawned the possessor of the emblem was thoroughly fatigued in soul and body. He determined to get rid of the rabbit's foot, and when he reached the street threw it on the sidewalk. In a moment he felt like a new man, and his former buoyancy of spirits returned. But, alas, fate had more misfortunes in store for him, and he had not proceeded half a square before a colored urchin touched him on the arm and, holding the fatal rabbit's foot toward him, said, "I seen you drop it, sir, and I thought you might want it."

There it was, confronting him like a nemesis. It would have been easy to have told the boy to keep it, but he did not do this, and moodily walked down to his office. The day was a succession of unlucky events. He did not receive a considerable sum of money he confidently expected, an important case in which he had a large contingent fee was decided against him, and his clerk was taken ill, so that it became necessary for his employer to do his own work, which he managed to get through at a late hour with the assistance of a stenographer and typewriter.

His wife was considerably worse when he returned home and he was compelled to remain up all night with her. The rest of the week was a repetition of the two days he had passed. When Saturday came he was careworn, fretful and anxious about his wife's health, for she was dangerously ill, and there were grave fears as to her recovery. His business had gone wrong and every thing he did seemed to turn out exactly opposite to what he desired.

Then he determined to get rid of that infernal rabbit's foot. Its influence had undoubtedly contributed a great deal to his moroseness, and he was well nigh ill. Into the stove he threw the foot and watched it burn with considerable pleasure. He was rid of it at last.

Strange to relate, his wife began to improve. He felt on better terms with himself, and his life returned to its normal channels. It may be that a rabbit's foot is not unlucky, but there is one man in Washington who will never carry one again for good luck.—Washington Post.

The Troublesome Father-in-Law.

Among the Piutes it is always the father-in-law that makes the trouble. Every married Piute is always glad of a visit from his mother-in-law. He welcomes her with his broadest grin. The arrival of the mother-in-law gives him a double team, where before he had only one animal. He hails her appearance with delight, and piling a jackass load of wood upon her willing old back, sends her into town with his wife, similarly packed, to peddle out the fuel and bring back to him a supply of money for his favorite game of poker. The Piute father-in-law is no use as a wood packer, nor will he gather grass seeds or pine nuts.—Virginia City Enterprise.

A PARABLE.

The things that just about us lie
Are all that we can mark,
When light is beaming in the sky
And twilight turns to dark.

But when from sight close darkness bars
The faces next our own,
O heaven, with thy million stars,
Our eyes see thee alone!

—Charlotte Platz Bates in Congregationalist.

Spartan Sociology.

Every student of history knows that the Spartans worshiped the beautiful and the useful, and that they took the means to get them. Bodily perfection and mental activity were attained by well appointed exercise and healthy parents. The sickly and the constitutionally diseased were not allowed to marry; the healthy were punished if they did not marry. Men that were unmarried after a certain age were excluded from the society of women, and once a year were exhibited in public as a warning to other and younger men. Young men and young women were not allowed to marry before they had attained maturity or cut loose from parental leading strings. This Spartan system, which was purely for the welfare of the state, was in force for 500 years, and no braver nor stronger men, no more healthy nor more beautiful women, were ever seen than in old Sparta. Few would wish to see Spartanism revived in these days, but we may learn some valuable lessons from that ancient state.

We may also learn something from our newly born sister republic, Brazil, where there is a remarkable and self imposed family custom in regard to marriages in the higher classes. The man about to marry is required to furnish a certificate from one or more physicians that he is free from diseases of a certain class, and that he is free also from all signs of any of the diseases that are transmissible to the offspring, and further than this, the physicians must testify that so far as they can learn there is no reason to believe that the marriage will be otherwise than in accord with sanitary laws. We, as a people, are taking more interest in the proper kinds of physical culture than before. Our women are coming to know that they can dress just as well without distorting their bodies and imperiling their health. But the day of the truly sanitary marriage is a long way off. Meanwhile a great many people are getting married that should remain single.—Chicago Herald.

Instruments of Torture.

It is stated that the renowned collection of mediæval instruments of torture at Nuremberg has been sold to a London company. Prima facie we should doubt that the municipality of a town so famous for its antique relics would be willing—or, indeed, would be permitted—to dispose of a collection unique, so far as we know. Nor do the projects of the London company, as described, incline us to faith. But the report is circumstantial. Our enterprising fellow citizens propose to exhibit their treasures in the chief towns of Europe, and then to put them up for auction. Furthermore, it is asserted that the authorities of Berlin already look forward to the sale, and meditate buying the lot in bulk.

Doubtless an exhibition of appliances for torture, authenticated by at least the belief of generations, would draw prodigiously. It is strange how few instruments of the sort survive possessing serious claims to confidence. Our own specimens in the Tower are just as authentic as the block on which, as the worthy beef eater declares, Anne Boleyn lost her head. It is easy to understand that the governor or officials in charge of an old state prison would destroy such terribly irritating objects if they had time, when threatened by events that might lead to an exposure. Thus we are not surprised to learn that no machinery for torture was discovered in any of the Inquisition buildings that have been seized. But there are so many cases where it seems improbable that they would have removed or broken them up, that one is led to suspect the executioner may have kept his smaller instruments, at least, in his own quarters.—London Standard.

Uneasy.

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." One wonders that the czar of Russia does not follow the example of Charles V, and free himself from a life of continual apprehension. Is the life worth living which must be sustained by such precautions as those narrated below? Yes, if thereby one serves his generation. London Truth says:

It was given out that he would be the guest of the German emperor at the Marble palace, Potsdam, and when all kinds of expensive preparations had been made there, he decided he would be safer in Berlin, and a large sum was expended in arranging for his reception at the Schloss.

Finally, only one day before the emperor arrived, Count Schouvaloff received a telegram from Copenhagen to intimate that his majesty would alight at the Russian embassy, and the message was quickly followed by the arrival of the imperial workmen, seven in number, who now go in advance of the emperor whenever and wherever he travels.

There are two carpenters, two masons, two locksmiths and a foreman. They most carefully examine the chimneys, locks, flooring, walls and furniture of the house which the emperor is to occupy, and his own apartments are subjected to a most rigorous search.

The chimneys are objects of special attention, and every flue which leads to a room which the emperor is likely to enter is thoroughly barred both top and bottom, and, as if these precautions were not sufficient, police agents from St. Petersburg patrol the roof both day and night.

A Relic of the War.

Capt. Tip Harrison had an interesting war relic at the capitol Friday. It was an old battle flag worn thin and pierced by many holes. The story of the flag was told by Capt. Harrison: "When the war first broke out," he said, "I was a boy of 17 and was living in Bartow county. There were a number of boys of my own age who were anxious to join the army. These boys organized into a company, and we called ourselves the Bartow cadets. When, however, the time came for us to go to the front, many of the boys' parents would not let them go because they were so young. I had thirty-five left, however, and with these I meant to report for duty.

"In Bartow at that time a company of older men had been formed, under the command of Capt. Redding. They were called the Stewart Guards. I consolidated my company with the older one, and we took the name of the Bartow Guards. I was first lieutenant of the joint company. Just before marching away Miss Florida Fort, who is now Mrs. William A. Rawson, made the flag and presented it to us. Gen. Clement A. Evans was offered the position of major of the Thirty-first Georgia regiment if he could bring two companies into the service. He took our company for one and raised another, but we were still known as the Bartow guards, and carried this flag, which had been presented to me as our company colors, until the Confederate battle flag was adopted, then sent it home to my mother, and she has kept it as a memento ever since."—Atlanta Constitution.

Miss Rebecca Fairbanks, the last of a family that came over in 1635, is said to be still living in a house, in Dedham, Mass., that was brought over in the year mentioned and located on its present site at that time. The Fairbanks scale men came of this family.

A NEW KIND OF FISH YARN

A PISCATORIAL EXPLOIT WHICH PROVED PROFITABLE.

A Real Live Fish Caught and Cooked Under Water—How a Diver's Ingenuity Brought Him Fame and Won a Friendly Wager—A True Story.

"It was this way," replied Mr. George W. Fuller, the veteran diver, sitting back in his chair and half closing his eyes as if to recall all the circumstances of this most curious of diving experiments. "You see, I had been talking with some of the boys, telling them about what I could do, and all that, and, if I remember rightly, I made the assertion that I could catch a fish, dress it, cook it under water and bring it up to the surface in good shape for eating without wetting it a particle. Of course everybody was incredulous, and one man who was even more incredulous than the rest offered to bet me $100 that I could not do it. As I thought I had a pretty sure show of winning, and the man seemed anxious to bet, I put up my money, and when asked when I wanted the affair to come off, I set a day about a week ahead, as I had some preparations to make.

Taking a couple of my men I got a boat and went quite a distance out into the harbor, stopping over a place where I thought I should be able to catch a fish easily. I had brought a weighted barrel along with me and my diving suit. The barrel we then proceeded to sink, having the open side downward. Putting on my suit I went to the bottom and securely fastened the barrel to some rocks with ropes to make sure that it would neither rise to the surface nor float away. Mind you, I had the barrel raised about three feet from the bottom, and at this time, as a matter of course, it was filled with water. After I had secured it I stooped down and crawled up into it, standing erect upon the bottom. When I crawled in the barrel was full of water, but as I staid under there minute after minute, the water began to be driven out little by little, this being caused by the air which was issuing from my escape valve rising to the top of the barrel, and not being able to go any farther it, as a matter of course, kept forcing the water down. Soon my head was entirely out of water, and soon my chest was out.

"Then I unscrewed my helmet and stood in the air under the barrel. As it was being fed constantly from the pump above, the water lowered until there was not a drop in the barrel, and I was standing in only three feet of water. I had one of my patent lanterns with me so I could see what I was doing, and taking a hammer, nails and a small board, which I had brought down with me, I proceeded to nail up a small shelf at one side of the barrel of the height so that when my lantern was set upon it it would be convenient for me to look down on the top of it. This done, I put on my helmet, got out from under the barrel, and went up to the surface once more. All my arrangements were completed, and all I had to do now was to wait patiently for the day of the trial to come off.

"It dawned at last, bright and clear, and a considerable party of gentlemen embarked with us, to either see this, as they supposed, great feat performed, or to see me fail in my attempt to make good my assertion. I impressed it upon the mind of the party who had bet against me that to perform the feat it was very essential that I should go under water at a place where I could be reasonably sure of catching a fish, and he left it with me to select the place. Of course I steered for the spot where I had the barrel anchored, and, stopping near where I thought it would be, I put on my suit and prepared for the descent. I took with me my lantern, a small stew pan, pepper, salt, etc., and my fish hook.

"By the way, you never saw a man catch fish under water, did you? Well, it is quite a simple operation. You don't really use any hook at all, but a long line with the big sail needle on the end of it. When you are on the bottom and see a fish, good care must be taken to get behind him. Then cautiously edging up to him, you make a quick jab with the needle, and if you are a good shot your fish is caught. Then all you have to do is to push him up on the string, which must, of course, be knotted on the end, and you are ready for another one. It was one of these needles that I had, and I was very successful in not having to occupy much time in catching my fish, for I had scarcely struck bottom and got my bearings when I saw one directly ahead of me, and I succeeded in getting him impaled upon my needle in short order. Then I crawled under the barrel and, setting my lantern on the shelf, waited for the water to lower. I had not long to wait, however, and soon my helmet was hanging on a nail which I had hammered into the side of the barrel for that purpose, and I was busily cleaning the fish with my jack knife, which I forgot to mention I had brought with me for that purpose.

"This done, I unscrewed the top of the lantern, which, as you know, is quite a large one and has a big flame. This lantern is fed by a small air pipe from above, the same as a human being is, and as I could live and breathe freely under the barrel, of course the lantern could burn brightly, too. Placing the pan, which fitted exactly into the top of the lantern over the flame, I placed the fish in it and he was soon frying away at a great rate, while I soon made him palatable with salt and pepper.

"After it was well fried I shut off the blaze in the lamp and screwed on the cover, leaving the stewpan and the fish inside, where they were sure to keep perfectly dry. Then, putting on my helmet, I got out from under the barrel and gave the signal to be pulled up. I had been gone only a few minutes, and the people thought as a matter of course that I had come up to say that I could not catch the fish, never dreaming that I had caught it, dressed it and cooked it already. They were very much surprised when, on taking off the lamp, I showed them the fish steaming hot and well cooked."—Boston Globe.

Channel traffic between Dover and the Continent continues at highest human tide. No less than five extra mail packets are now employed to convey passengers, making sixteen in all.

Jewels in the Temples.

The Buddhists in Burmah do not consider the question of expense in beautifying their temples. Here is the description of the new vane of a pagoda at Rangoon: The vane is about 3 by 1½ feet broad, and thickly crusted with precious stones and lovely fans of the red Burmese gold. One ruby alone is worth 6,000 rupees, and there are several hundred rubies alone on this beautiful thing. On the tip of the iron rod on which works the vane is a richly carved and perforated gold ornament called the Semboo. It is somewhat egg shaped and a foot in height, tipped by an enormous diamond encircled by many smaller ones, crusted on like barnacles. All over this exquisite oval object are similar clumps of diamonds, no other stones being used for this part.—Exchange.

SHE SAVED HIS LIFE.

A Little Girl's Present Stops a Bullet and Prevents a Soldier's Death.

I was merely a child when the war broke out, but being a good operator on the sewing machine I was able to do considerable work on uniforms for the soldiers.

I heard old Dan Poynette, an elderly man who had just enlisted, say one day that he dreaded neuralgia in the head more than the enemy's bullets, so I made him a scarlet cap out of an old night cap that had belonged to my grandfather.

There were some scraps left over, out of which I concluded to make him a pinwheel, putting two silver dollars in the inside that I had saved up.

He tried on the cap, declared it would be the saving of his life, wondered that he or his wife had not thought to make one, and, taking up the pin holder, asked what it was, and cried out at its heft. "What has the child got in it?" he said, balancing it on his hand.

"Oh, if you ever get hungry just take it to a sutler's tent and—eat it," I sung out, dancing away on a hippety-hop.

Early on the following morning the boys marched gayly away.

Again we went back to picking lint and watching the telegraph dispatches. Then the air seemed to fill again with recruiting officers, more men had been called for, and we saw brave boys marching up and enrolling their names. There was news of battles, and the awful words, "Killed," "Wounded," "Missing," flooded the land with tears.

In one of the lists we read the name of Dan Poynette among the wounded. We thought pityingly of the wife and children and offered them all the help possible. There were many calls for help in those days, and every heart was sore and bleeding.

"Dan has three wounds," his wife told us, "not any of them fatal. He expects to get entirely well, but he says tell the little one he has a minie ball lodged just over his heart, flattened against a pinwheel, if you know what that is, I don't."

I clasped my hands in ecstasy. Then my silver dollars had saved his life. I had builded better than I knew. I think the knowledge would send a thrill of pleasure through the consciousness of one grown staid and reserved with years, but to me, an impulsive child, it was simply delightful.

Dan never grew entirely well, as he had hoped, but was given an honorable discharge and sent home with a knee that would never bend again.

On the evening of his first day at home he came hobbling over to our house, wearing his bullet riddled uniform, to show us the dent in the outer silver dollar of his pin holder.

"I don't know that I ever killed a man," he said, looking down to me with a smile; "I hope not, though I shot at them. But I'd rather be in your place, little one, and know for sure that I had saved a man's life than wear a general's straps." He had been promoted for bravery and given a colonel's straps, so I took my compliment proudly.

"The nightcap saved me many an ache, I know, for I have not had an attack of neuralgia since I began to wear it. I'll never be without one again, but it was the money that saved my life. There is nothing between me and a trench in Virginia, but that," he said, holding it out in his hand.

Mrs. Poynette came across the room and, stooping down, kissed me. I fumbled in my small pocket for a handkerchief, but failing to find one slipped out when no one noticed and mopped up my eyes on the corner of my print apron.

"It's an awful jolly thing to save a man's life," I muttered, "but (sniff) it (sniff) sorter makes one feel kinder funny."—New York Journal.

Speculative Theories of Population.

In a paper contributed to Science, Gen. M. C. Meigs calculates, upon the past ratio of increase, that in 1990 the "possible" population of the United States will be 1,292,357,000. Of this enormous prospective population he estimates the inhabitants of African descent at 85,957,000, or 1 to every 14 whites.

As the whole area of the states and territories, including water surface of lakes and rivers, is nearly 4,000,000 square miles, the figures of Gen. Meigs would give 323 inhabitants to every square mile in the United States in 1990. This is a greater areal population than that which is contained in any country in the world at the present day except little Belgium, the inhabitants of which number 481 to the square mile. Even hoary India has only 311 inhabitants to the square mile; and for every square mile in the teeming Chinese empire there are only 84 inhabitants.

But experience has shown that, beyond amusing the speculator in theories, such calculations have little value. Except in stationary and half civilized countries, like India and China, rational tendencies are constantly operating to prevent an excess of population from encroaching on the means of living. The early growth of a new country such as the United States or Australia affords no criterion for estimating its population a century or a half century hence.

There are vast and fertile regions in Africa, South America, and other parts of the earth that are yet unpeopled; and the means of cheaply distributing surplus populations are rapidly increasing. Long before 1990 the people of the United States may be stirred by the same impulse of emigration that tends to arrest the growth of populations in most of the countries of Europe.—Philadelphia Record.

Senator Sawyer.

All the representatives from Wisconsin look on Sawyer as their patron saint. The old man eats a big luncheon every day in the senate restaurant, and he never eats alone. As a rule, three or four of the elderly senators may be found with him, and merry groups they make. Senator Sawyer has recently finished, or rather occupied, one of the most beautiful houses in Washington—a veritable castle.—Walter Wellman.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Washington, D. C. Jan. 5, 1890.

Vice President Morton has shied his castor into the Presidential ring with a confidence that has caused a mixture of amusement and consternation among the other republican aspirants for the nomination. Mr. Morton's campaign began with the grand New Year's reception at his residence here, which is a veritable palace, and is to be kept up by the most lavish hospitality—he believes with the late Sam Ward that one of the best ways to control men is through their stomachs. His [illegible] apartment house here is also to be made to help along his aspirations, and any pecunious, but influential politician may be certain of living like a king without being bothered with such vulger things as bills, if he will only pledge his influence to brother Levi. If he is influential enough he may even get the Vice President's magic initials on one corner of his promissory note for three figures, which a trip to Ney York will turn into ready cash. It will readily be seen that Mr. Morton will be a formible candidate for the nomination with the large class that are always on the make. It is said that Mr. Blaine is very much pleased at Mr. Morton's "coming out as he hops it will draw the attention of the public away from the prematurely exposed Blaine boom, and that he has not the slightest fear of the banker politician as a rival.

Congress resumed business to-day. The attendance in both Houses was fair, considering the great prevalence of sickness among the members. There was more than a quorum present in both House and Senate. Among the notable absentees in the House were ex-Speaker Randall, who has not occupied his seat this session, and Judge Kelly, of Pennsylvania, who is lying at the point of death in a Washington hotel. In the Senate Mr. Brown's seat is still vacant, and there are grave fears that it will never again be occupied by the distinguished Georgian.

The new member of the Supreme Court, Justice Brewer was to-day sworn in by Chief Justice Fuller. In appearance he compares favorably with his colleagues, but his new silk gown caused him to walk rather awkwardly when he came into the court room; but wearing a gown always has that effect on a man until he gets used to it. In fact more than one of Mr. Justice Brewer's colleagues have never gotten used to wearing the gown, they still strut in and out of the court room like theatrical "supes" in the togas.

Ex-Speaker Carlisle had lots of fun with a Texas wool grower, who was giving his views before the House Ways and Means committee. The gentleman expressed himself as a protectionist, and wanted the tariff on wool raised. By adroit cross-questioning Mr. Carlisle in a few minutes brought out the fact that the protectionist wool grower was in favor of free trade in everything else but wool and woolen goods. The whole committee, republicans included, joined in a hearty laugh at the Texan's expense.

A man and his wife, claiming to be British subjects, have presented a petition to Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, reciting the curious fact that they have been shot and beaten by white citizens of North Carolina because they persisted in preaching to, and teaching the negroes of that State. Sir Julian is now investigating their story.

Politics make a queer complication sometimes For instance: a democrat was recently discharged from the machine shop of the Washington Navy yard because he helped Wilkes Booth to cross the river when he was trying to get away. He was discharged at the special request of Mr. Madd, who is a republican contestant for a seat in the House from Maryland district, and who is also a near relative of Dr. Madd, the man who set Wilkes Booth's leg after it was broken and afterwards aided him in his desperate efforts to escape.

The civil service commission is investigating a queer charge now. One man in the Government printing office is charged with having collected campaign funds from the employees of the office for both political parties during the last campaign.

The "big head" is growing instead of diminishing among the members of the present administration. It would seem that the some of absurd ty had been reached when the chief of a departmental bureau sends a circular letter to Senators notifying them that they would be admitted to his office only between 12 and 2 o'clock daily. Such a letter was recently sent, and has been the cause of some senatorial indignation.

Gen. Rosecrans, Register of the Treasury, will soon go. Already the position has been tendered to ex-Congressman Guenther, of Wisconsin, who declined it because he insists on having the Recordship of Deeds of the District of Columbia, or nothing.

Headquarters of the Democratic State Central Committee.

HARRISBURG, PA., January 7th, 1890.

The Democratic State Central Committee will meet at the rooms of the Committee, Market Street, Harrisburg, Pa, on Wednesday, January 22d, 1890, at twelve o'clock, noon, to elect one person to serve as Chairman of Democratic committees, for the ensuing year; and to transact such other business as may properly be brought before the committee.

The rules that relate to this meeting are the following:

RULE ONE—The Democratic Organization of the State of Pennsylvania shall consist of:

First—A Chairman of Democratic Committees, and a permanent Secretary.

Second—A Democratic State Executive Committee, composed of nine members.

Third—A State Central Committee.

Fourth—Nine State Division Committees.

RULE TWO—The Chairman of Democratic Committees shall be ex-officio, a member of all committees and the Acting Chairman of the Democratic State Executive and State Central Committees.

RULE THREE— The Chairman of Democratic Committees shall be elected by the Democratic State Central Committee at an annual meeting thereof to be held on the first Wednesday after the third Monday in January, at such place as may be designated by the State Executive Committee and shall hold office for a period of one year or until his successor shall be duly elected. Any qualified Democratic voter of the State of Pennsylvania shall be eligible to said office.

RULE FIVE—The State Central Committee shall consist of one member from each county, and the Chairman of the local county organization shall be ex-officio the member of the Democratic State Central Committee from said county, provided that any county that is intitled to more than one State Senator shall have an additional member for each additional Senator, which said additional member shall be elected in such manner as the local county organizations of the respective counties may determine, and provided that not more than one member of the State Central Committee shall be elected in any senatorial district from the same county. And this Committee shall elect one permanent Secretary who shall have charge of the records of the Committee and transmit the same to his successor.

RULE SIX—Members of the State Central Committee unable to attend, may, for any meeting deputize in writing, substitutes, to act pro tem for them, but they must be voters in the counties and senatorial district which their principals represent.

RULE FOURTEEN—(Part of old rule No. 1) "It (referring to the State Central Committee) may at this (refering to the annual meeting in January) or subsequent meetings fix the time for the State Convention and arrange therefor." ELLIOTT P. KISNER,

BENJAMIN M. NEAD, Chairman.
Permanent Secretary.

Does Experience Count.

It does, in every line of business, and especially in compounding and preparing medicines. This is illustrated in the great superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla over other preparations, as shown by the remarkable cures it has accomplished.

The head of the firm of C. I. Hood & Co. is a thoroughly competent and experienced pharmacist, having devoted his whole life to the study and actual preparation of medicines. He is also a member of the Massachusetts and American Pharmaceutical Associations, and continues actively devoted to supervising the preparation of and managing the business connected with, Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hence the superiority and peculiar merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is built upon the most substantial foundation. In its preparation there is represented all the knowledge which modern research in medical science has developed, combined with long experience, brain-work, and experiment. It is only necessary to give this medicine a fair trial to realize its great curative value.

La Grippe Still Prevalent.

The epidemic of influenza has assumed an alarming condition. It has spread all over the world, and its complications with other diseases is making it fatal. In New York city alone there were over 400 deaths last week, attributable to "la grippe." The total deaths for the week from all causes was over 1200. The influenza seems to attack the middle aged and the old and especially those constitutions in which other diseases are lurking. Children whose constitutions are strong and exempt from any other chronic ailments are free from attacks, as also are those of middle and old age who are temperate in their habits.

In Brooklyn there were 108 deaths last week against 49 the previous week.

In Philadelphia there are about 5000 cases, and the death rate is on the increase.

Chicago is reported to have 40,000 cases. Two police officers, and 100 fireman being confined to their beds. This great increase is attributable to the warm, damp weather.

In Boston the death rate reached 327, of which 40 per cent was due to "la grippe."

Denver, Colorado reports that one half if not two thirds of the people are down with the disease.

In New Brunswick, New Jersey there are over 1000 cases.

Buffalo has had its full share of the disease, 30 members of the police force are prostrated with it.

The disease abroad shows no abatement. One day there were 425 funerals the greatest average of funerals previous to that being 200 a day. The disease is spreading in Venice, Milan and Geno. In Venice there were 43 deaths from the disease in a single day.

A New Game Law.

There is no disputing the fact that game is growing scarcer in this State every year. The mountains of Pennsylvania, which once were inhabited by herds of deer and hundreds of brown bear, can be hunted over now without seeing more than a few scattered animals of either species. Wild deer are rapidly becoming extinct in the forests, and the bear is following closely on the heels of his fleeter companion. Game laws protect them to a great extent, and have prevented their total extermination. But the State statutes, as they now are, must either be modified so as to make the hunting season shorter, or changed in some other way to lessen the number of deer and bear killed annually, or else the annihilation of both kinds of game, which has been going on steadily and rapidly, will soon be complete. Would it not be a good plan both to shorten the season for hunting, and to restrict the number of deer or bear to be killed by any man to one during a season? Professional hunters go into the woods for several weeks at a time and have no trouble in killing every deer in that section. Neither old deer nor young fawns are spared. If it is possible to fix the time in which it is lawful to hunt deer and other game, and also possible to execute the prohibiting laws, it would also be possible to carry into effect a law which would make it a crime, punishable by a large fine, for any man to kill more than one deer or bear in a year. A similiar law would work well with reference to smaller animals, such as rabbits, squirrels, raccoons, and wild fowl such as pheasants and ducks.—Ex.

His Family Had Perished.

A GERMAN RETURNS TO JOHNSTOWN NOT KNOWING THERE HAD BEEN A FLOOD.

Emile Etoine, a puddler in the employ of the Cambria Iron Company at Johnstown, left that place shortly before the flood of May 31 and went to his native place in Germany for the purpose of taking possession of some property left him by a relative. The will was contested and the wife and five children he left behind heard nothing from him He was finally successful in his suit and a few days ago returned with a draft for $20,000 in his pocket.

On reaching Johnstown he was amazed to see the desolation wrought by the flood, of which he had heard nothing, and vigilant inquiry on his part has failed to reveal to him the fate of his wife and children. The house in whice he lived was swept away and it is presumed that his family was buried among the unidentified dead, as they were but little known and their names do not appear upon the roll of deaths. Etoine will return to Germany.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work, they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A. P Ordway & Co., proprietors of Sulphur Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the market.—Weekly Chemist.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

Heartburn

Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." The court appointed Samuel Neyhard. H. H. Hulme and John S. Kline, who are to report at February court.

A very small audience witnessed "The Enemy" at the Opera House last Thursday night, owing to the fact that a report had been put in circulation that it was a poor show. Those who were present were greatly pleased, the play being full of thrilling incidents, and the troupe made made up of excellent actors. It was one of the best that has been here for some time.

Rev. P. A. Heilman who was elected pastor of the Lutheran church of this place on the 29th of December, has accepted the call. He came over Saturday last, preached Sunday morning and evening and is holding nightly meetings this week—observing the week of prayer. Special services will be held Friday evening, preparatory to the Communion services which will be held Sunday morning Jan 12th at 10 o'clock.

The following letters are held at Bloomsburg, Pa., post-office, and will be sent to the dead letter office, January 21, 1890.

Mr. Samuel Camp, Mr. Samuel Coleman, Mary E. Smith, B. Stiner, Frank Scot, Daniel Snyder, Mark Twain, Thomas Yaple.

Persons calling for these letters please say, they were advertised Jan. 7, 1889.

One cent will be charged on each letter advertised.

Messrs. T. W. Riley, Dr. Gwinner, of Centralia, and M. H. Kulp, of Shamokin, together with a number of Milton friends, were banqueted at the Riverside House, Monday evening, as the guests of Messrs. F. M. Kelly, Dr. Miles, William and Manfred Barr. It was a royal occasion, on which the prominent actors did not "play horse," although with but few exceptions, all are well known horsemen on our circuit—Record.

On Friday last the D. L. W. R. R. Co., procured an injunction restraining the Bloomsburg Belt R. R. Co., and the Philadelphia & Reading R. R. Co. from crossing the tracks of the plaintiff at any point between Market street and Fishingcreek at Rupert. This will prevent the Belt Line from connecting with the P. & R. until the suit is ended. A motion to continue the injunction will be argued before Judge Ikeler on the 21st.

There are now pending three suits concerning railroad grade crossings in Bloomsburg.

The double frame house on the northeast corner of the cemetery plot and belonging to the Cemetery Company, was discovered to be on fire about half past seven o'clock Wednesday evening. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue. The Fire Companies immediately rushed to the scene and succeeded in putting out the fire, after the roof and top story were about destroyed. A great deal of the property was saved, among it being a bureau drawer with $100 in money. There was an insurance of $1000.

The Pueblo Chieftian, of Pueblo, Colorado, for January 1, is a 20 page paper, in a handsome illustrated cover. In it we find the following notice of a former Bloomsburger.

"A man who is eligible for jury duty, by his not having read the papers, may not know who H. F. Sharpless is, but there is not another man or a woman or child in the city who does not read his attractive advertisements and to whom his name is not familiar. Mr. Sharpless is located at 509, the real estate headquarters of Santa Fe avenue, where people call to see him constantly to inquire about houses and lots. Mr. Sharpless does a big business, and possesses in a large degree the confidence of the people. No firm enjoys a higher reputation for integrity in business transactions. He can refer to all the banking institutions of the city. He operates largely for eastern clients and eastern capital.

Mr. Sharpless makes the handling of inside property a specialty. He has made a study of and is well informed on the most desirable business properties. He has consummated a large proportion of the most important sales ever made in Pueblo.

Mr. Sharpless controls through his clients the best and most desirale properties in the city. It is a well known fact that he enjoys an enviable reputation among the real estate men of our city. Sharpless & Co. treat everybody fairly and may be depended upon as business men."

Under the law, opera houses and theatres are obliged to pay a mercantile license of $50 a year. Last year was the first time that this has been enforced in the country towns. In Columbia county the Merchantile appraiser found only one place of amusement, and that was the Bloomsburg Opera House. Millville, Catawissa and Berwick all have opera houses, and if one is obliged to pay this license all should be treated alike.

On Thursday, December 19th, 1889, Dr. William H. Magill, departed this life in the ninety-fifth year of his age at his residence in Danville. From the History of Montour County we clip the following:

"William H. Magill, retired physician and surgeon, of Danville, is the oldest physician in this part of the state. He was born in Montgomery county, Penna., March 24th, 1795, son of William and Mary (Dunlap) Magill. Their ancestors were among the early settlers of Pennsylvania. At the age of twelve years he entered the Doylestown Academy, in Bucks county, Penna., from there he went to Baltimore, Md., and read medicine with James Smith, M. D., four years and graduated from the Medical University of Baltimore, in 1817. He then attended lectures at Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia until the spring of 1818, when he began the practice of medicine in Danville, opening an office in the same house where he now resides. This house is of brick, erected by his mother in 1841, the family having moved there in the spring of that year. When Dr. Magill began the practice of medicine Danville was a very small place, and the houses in that vicinity were few. Dr. Magill was a man of more than ordinary ability and skill, and possessed wonderful powers of endurance. He rode on horseback over a large scope of country day and night enduring hardships and surmounting difficulties that the doctors of this day know nothing of. He married May 1, 1828, Miss Mary, daughter of Gen. Dan Montgomery. This union has been blessed with eight children, viz: Daniel Ziebuth, William H., Hannah L., Robert D., Christina M., Mary D. and James D., six of whom lived to be grown. Mrs. Magill died in 1882; she was an earnest Christian and a member of the Presbyterian Church; Dr. Magill was also a member of that church. He was the first burgess of Danville; in politics he was a Whig, but since the organization of the Republican party he has been one of its strong supporters. His name will be revered not for his professional skill and honor, but for his deeds of Charity and Christian example."

A Christmas entertainment, designated, "Cantata," under the auspices of the Sunday School, on Christmas eve, was repeated on New Year's night, in the beautiful Christain Chapel at Cambra. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the house was well filled on both occasions. The proceeds of admission fees will be applied to the use and benefit of the Sunday School. The representatives or committees on arrangements manifested great taste and discretion in the selection, both as to character of "Cantata," decoration, and general supervision of all the exercises, as there was harmony and decorum throughout. The exhibitors' hall was inclosed by curtains which were drawn and dropped as occasion required. The words, "Christmas Eve," were suspended in gilded letters from a festooned arch, in front of the platform. An oil painting hung from the wall, representing a large river with deep shades of green, and dense forestry, emblematic of the "River of Life." Everything conspired to draw the attention and to make one feel happy. The exercises were opened on New Year's night, with prayer by Elder Calhoun formerly of Cambra, but now of Plymouth. The following is the program in full.

PART FIRST.

Merry Christmas, by school;
Happy to Night, Professional March.
Harvest Days are Over, by E. B. Gearhart and Chorus School.
Think of Me Kindly, Solo by Miss Lena McHenry
Ha! Ha! Your Work is Done, Duet.
Jack Frost and Autumn, by Miss Myra Gearhart.
Welcome Winter, Trio, by Misses Blanche and Madge McHenry and Zora Hughes.
Hail our Queen, Chorus by School.
Merry bells are Ringing Now, Solo and chorus by Paul Davidson, Lena Cary, Hattie Buckalew and Pauline Cary.
Beautiful Moonlight, Duet by Mrs. C. C. Hughes and Miss Myra Gearhart.
Apples For a Penny by Miss Zora Hughes..
Lena and Her Dolls, Tableau.

PART SECOND.

The Children are Coming, Duet, Granpa and Grandma, by Will Gearhart and Mrs. C. C. Hughes.
Home, Sweet Home, Quartette, by Miss Myra Gearhart, Miss Lena McHenry, E. B. Gearhart and Silas McHenry.
You are Welcome, solo, by Will Gearhart.
Glad Time of Re-union, Quartette and Chorus,
If All Who Keep Christmas, solo, by Pearl McHenry and Chorus.
Do You Know? Duet by Ray McHenry and Zora Hughes.
Girl With the Curl, solo, by Zell McHenry.
Memory Land, solo and quartette, by Mrs. C. C. Hughes and Chorus.
Hurrah For Santa Claus, chorus.
Santa's Song, solo, Lea Golder. The Time is Swiftly going, quartette. Good Night, Chorus.

At this juncture a loud call was made for some young men from Nanticoke when Lawrence McHenry, son of Hon. James McHenry, and telegrapher at the above named place, John Warne, Fred and Thomas Pope of Welsh and English parentage, appeared on the platform and outrivaled all efforts at vocal music that we ever had the pleasure to listen to. John Warne has the reputation of being the best tenor singer in the State, in token of which he was awarded a "Gold Medal. They sung the pieces, viz: "Song of the "The Soldier," "Come Brothers Tune the Lay," and "Our Native Land."

Concluded with "Mercy's Dream,"—Tableau.

Part Second was particularly affecting and interesting. Every part throughout the whole was represented and replete in all the paraphernalia of age, condition and circumstance in life, and position, to which it was designed to refer, and the ideas to be conveyed were fully realized and appreciated by a highly delighted audience.

Instrumental music on a piano was furnished by Stanley McHenry, Musical Director. A. G. Davidson was general Manager.

A Family Gathering.

Have you a father? Have you a mother? Have you a son or daughter, sister or a brother who has not yet taken Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, the guaranteed remedy for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup and all Throat and Lung troubles? If so, when a sample bottle is gladly given to you free by any druggist, and the large size costs only 50c and $1.00.

A BOLD ATTEMPT TO ROB THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

FRUSTRATED BY THE PRESENCE OF MIND OF CASHIER TUSTIN.

On Tuesday morning just before twelve o'clock a man entered the First National Bank, and walking around behind the counter, said that he needed a thousand dollars, and must have it right away. With this remark he drew a revolver from his pocket and aimed it at Cashier Tustin. Mr. Tustin, and his daughter, Miss Mary were sitting at a table when the man entered. Edward Tustin was in the vault sealing up a package of money. As soon as the man made his demand Mr. Tustin arose and faced him, believing that he had a lunatic to deal with. Under this impression he at once concluded that the proper mode of procedure was to engage his visitor in conversation and, if possible, divert his mind. He stepped towards the man and said that there was no need of having any trouble, and invited him to walk from behind the counter and they would talk about it. Just at this time Mr. Edward Tustin, having heard the conversation and seen the revolver from his position in the vault, threw the money he was sealing up, into the inner safe and locked the door, which made a little noise, and at that the man commenced to back away, Mr. Tustin following him, until he reached the bank door, when he went out, saying as he did so, "Don't you follow me or I'll shoot." He went down Market street to the tennis court, opposite the new Presbyterian church, and there mounted a horse of P. S. Harman's which he had stolen from the stable, and tied at that point for his escape. He went out Fourth street to the first alley, thence up to Third, out Third to West and Main, and on out of town. An alarm was given at once, as soon as he left the bank, and several started in pursuit. At one point William Eyerly of Buckhorn caught the horse by the bridle, and near the M. E. Church C. P. Sloan and Theo. Smith attempted to stop him, but he drew his pistol and ordered them to keep hands off, which they very naturally did, under the circumstances. Ed. Tustin first left the bank and seeing Elmer Brugler, asked him to get his horse and follow the would-be robber, which Elmer did, in company with F. Housel. They found the horse tied out near the slate quarry, but the rider was gone. Hastening back to town with this information, a party consisting of Chief of Police Frear, Geo. Hunt, Sam H. Harman, and F. Housel, went in pursuit, but returned in a couple of hours without making an arrest.

THE ROBBER KNOWN.

From the information that has been gathered it is known almost beyond a possibility of doubt, that this bold attempt at robbery was made by a man named Amos Appleman. He was dressed like a cow-boy, with a broad-brimmed light slouch hat, pants in his boots, heavy coat, and sandy moustache. It is said by some that his moustache was dark, but if so it has been colored recently, as its natural shade is red. Appleman was seen in Danville on Tuesday. He bought a ticket at the D. L. & W. depot in Danville on Tuesday morning for the 10.26 train, for Bloomsburg. John McClure sold him the ticket, and is sure that it was Appleman, as they were in the same regiment in the army, and has known him since. On reaching Bloomsburg, Appleman secured a horse as above mentioned. He then came up to the corner and was seen looking in the bank window a short time before his attempt to rob. Seeing Richard Edwards in there he walked up street a little ways and sat down on the step of Savage's jewelry store. Then seeing Edwards leave the bank, and having seen only Mr. Tustin and Miss Mary in the bank he entered as has been described. Michael Ohl saw him mount the horse, and says it was Appleman, whom he knows. After leaving the horse Appleman walked over the hill to Rupert, across the railroad bridge and down to the N. & W. B. Station. He met H. R. Grimes at Catawissa and inquired the first train to Sunbury. He boarded a freight train for Sunbury at two o'clock, and that is the last that has been heard of him. Telegrams have been sent all around, and the police are on the lookout for him.

LATER.

On Wednesday Edward Tustin and John S. Williams took the 12.05 train on the D. L. & W., having been told by John Redmond of Danville that he had seen Appleman near Washingtonville in the morning. They went to Danville Mr. Redmond accompanying them, and there took a team and drove to Washingtonville, and found that Appleman had left there 20 minutes before. They then drove on, and overtook him between Washingtonville and Exchange, walking in the public road. John Williams drew Appleman's attention by calling to him, and as he looked around Edward Tustin covered him with a revolver and said "throw up your hands," which Appleman did. Williams and Redmond then jumped out and handcuffed him. No weapon was found on him. They brought their prisoner to Bloomsburg and after a hearing before Esq. Jacoby, Appleman was committed to jail. He is charged with horse stealing, carrying concealed deadly weapons, pointing a pistol at Mr. Tustin, attempted robbery, and will probably be tried in the United States Circuit Court for attempting to rob a National bank. Altogether this may afford him an opportunity to spend much of life remaining to him behind prison bars. Appleman did not attempt to deny any of the charges, but claimed that he was drunk.

JUDGE C. S. McHENRY DEAD.

For the past two weeks Hon. Cyrus B. McHenry has been sick of typhoid pneumonia, but reports received from him were favorable, and no one anticipated a fatal result. It was therefore a great shock to this community when the news was received here on Wednesday that his death had occurred at noon of that day. He grew worse on Saturday morning and soon passed away.

Cyrus B. McHenry was a son of Moses McHenry, and was one of eleven children. He was a brother of Elias, and John J. McHenry of Benton, of James McHenry of Cambra, of Daniel McHenry of Stillwater, and also of Silas McHenry who died in June, 1886. He was born Nov. 3, 1830 on the homestead, where he lived until he was married, when he removed to the farm where he died. He was married on December 28, 1852, to Miss Priscilla Covenhoven of Orangeville, and there was born to them the following children: Oliver, who died in 1873; Lily B. wife of H. B. Low of Orangeville; and William L.

Mr. McHenry was always active in politics, being a staunch democrat, and though never asking for an office for himself, he was ever ready to do all in his power for his friends. When a vacancy was created in the office of Associate Judge in 1887 by the death of James Lake, the friends of Cyrus B. McHenry circulated a petition and secured his appointment to that office from Governor Pattison. The following year he was nominated, and elected for the full term of five years, with but little opposition. That office he has filled conscientiously and well.

Judge McHenry was honored, and admired by all who knew him. He was honest, upright, pure and a leading member of the Christian church, in which he was an elder for many years prior to his death. As a friend he was true and faithful, and as an enemy he always defined his ground, so that his opponents knew just where to find him. His death is a great loss to the county, to Fishingcreek township, and above all to the home that for so many years has been a happy one. The memory of this noble man will linger long in the hearts of those whose privilege it was to enjoy his friendship. May he rest in peace.

The funeral will take place at Stillwater on Saturday at 10 o'clock. Persons can take regular morning train.

Short-Hand Writers Outdone.

The Sunbury Daily says: Senator Wolverton has in practical use at his office the Phonograph-Graphophone. The machine is worked by the foot and you talk into it as in a telephone. The cylinders are made of composition and the slightest sound is noted. In an hour on Saturday he dictated fifty-five letters using ten cylinders, one of the letters was fifteen pages long. In the outer office is another machine and the cylinders are placed on that and the letters written out on a type writer. It took four hour's work to write out the fifty-five letters dictated into the machine in an hour. C. R. Savidge, Esq. also uses one in his office.

SHAW—JACOBY.—At Bloomsburg, Pa., Dec. 18th, 1889,

He Helped the Author.

A COMPOSITOR WHO WASN'T SATISFIED WITH A WRITER'S MENU.

A Chicago printer, busily engaged in hunting work, tells the following story: "I had a good job," he said, "in a Monroe street fiction foundry—one of those print shops where they publish stories of the 'Skeleton Hunter's Last Gargling Gasp, order by the yard. It is the rankest kind of rot and is liable to give the printer blood poisoning if he handles much of it. One day I got a wad of copy that was positively sickening. It was about a lovely girl who had been captured and torn away from her home by a heartless desperado and his band of bloodthirsty Apaches.

"That night they camped in a rocky gorge three hundred miles from nowhere, and bound the unfortunate maiden to a tree with the usual buckskin thongs, which cut deep into her tender wrists. Then they all laid down and went to sleep. In the meantime, Old Zeke, the hairy scout, who was on the trail, sneaked up just at daylight, when people sleep the soundest, Zeke sailed in and killed twenty-five or thirty Indians, and then released the girl and got her something to eat out of his saddle-bags. This was where I got in my work.

"The first thing Zeke took out of the bag was several thick slices of Vienna bread with honey on them. Next came cold boiled ham, cut thin, an apple pie with a short, crispy upper crust and last a tender spring chicken, roasted a delisate brown. Mind you, he had all this stuff in a pair of saddle bags in the wilds of the Rocky Mountains, 300 miles from civilization, in the year 1836. It made me sick, but I resolved that the poor girl should have one good feed if I died for it. So I shoved in another paragraph like this, completing the bill of fare:

"After getting the girl started Zeke reached into the saddle bag and pulled out a bowl of steaming hot consomme and a broiled fresh mackerel, some deviled crabs, cold slaw, potato salad, a half fry, veal cutlets breaded, with tomato sauce; green corn on the cob, some clam chowder, stewed turkey, a portion of rice pudding, two cups of chocolate, pork tenderloin, Rochefort cheese and a bottle of Bass' ale, Saratoga chips, a plate of vanilla ice cream, a Chinese paper napkin, sliced cucumbers, some California grapes and a nickel-plated nut-cracker.

"Did it go?" asked an interested listener.

"No, it didn't," said the printer sadly, "but I did. The boss came next morning and wanted to know who was writing that story. I said the author was making a stagger in that direction, but wasn't giving the girl a fair show.

"That may be,' said the boss, 'but if he wants to run a cafe in connection with the story we'll hire a cook and make it easier for you.'"

"Then he told me that I was too smart to be a printer, and had better go out where the cool air would strike me. I went."—Chicago Times.

Dr. Talmage's Celestial Dream.

One night, lying on my lounge when very tired, my children all around me in full romp and hilarity and laughter, half awake and half asleep, I dreamed this dream: I was in a far country. It was not Persia, although more than oriental luxuries crowned the cities. It was not the tropics, although more than tropical fruitfulness filled the gardens. It was not Italy, although more than Italian softness filled the air. And I wandered around looking for thorns and nettles, but I found that none of them grew there, and I saw the sun rise and I watched to see it set but it set not. And I saw people in holiday attire, and I said: "When will they put off this and put on workmen's garb, and again delve in the mine, or swelter at the forge?" but they never put off the holiday attire.

And I wandered in the suburbs of the city to find the place where the dead sleep, and I looked all along the line of beautiful hills, the place where the dead might most blissfully sleep, and I saw towers and castles, but not a mausoleum, or a monument, or a white slab was to be seen. And I went into the chapel of the great tower, and I said: "Where do the poor worship? and where are the benches on which they sit?" and the answer was made me, "We have no poor in this country.

And then I wandered out to find the hovels of the destitute, and I found mansions of amber and ivory and gold, but not a tear could I see, not a sigh could I hear, and I was bewildered and I sat down under the branches of a great tree, and I said, "Where am I? and whence comes all this scene? And then out from among the leaves and up the flowery paths and across the bright streams there came a beautiful group thronging all about me, and as I saw them come I thought I knew their step, and as they shouted I thought I knew their voices, but they were so gloriously arrayed in apparel, Such as I had never before witnessed, that I bowed as stranger to stranger. But when again they clapped their hands and shouted "Welcome, welcome!" the mystery all vanished, and I found that time had gone and eternity had come, and we were all together again in our new home in heaven.

And I looked around and I said, "Are we all here?" and the voices of many generations responded, "All here!" And while tears of gladness were raining down our cheecks, and the branches of the Lebanon cedars were clapping their hands, and the towers of the great city were chiming their welcome, we all together began to leap and shout and sing: "Home, home, home, home."—T. De Witt Talmage, in the January Ladies Home Journal.

A Few Facts About Water And Wells.

The amount of the rainfall that is carried out to sea by the rivers has been estimated to be about one-fourth of the whole amount that falls on the earth's surface. Of the other three-fourths a large portion is evaporated, or sinks into the ground as subterranean water. A well is simply below where the ground is saturated with water. The upper surface of this ground water lies at very different depths in different soils and at different seasons of the year. Very much depends on whether the soil is porous or the distance of the ground water from the surface of the earth. Where rains are frequent and abundant, the ground water rises and the wells are full. In periods of drought gut many wells decome dry because the ground water has settled below its normal level. Manifestly, those lands are best adapted to general agriculture where the ground water does not stand so near the surface of the soil as to unfit for ordinary cultivation, or so far below that the moisture rising by capillarity in times of drought is scanty and insignificant. Artesian water is found far below the ordinary water table.

The equivalent, in English money, of $2,500 was once offered by an old lady in London for the return of a favorite cat which had strayed or been stolen. People called her a "crank," and perhaps she was. It is unfortunate that one of the gentler sex should ever gain this title, yet many do. It is, however, frequently not their fault. Often functional derangements will apparently change a woman's entire nature. Don't blame such sufferers if they are "cranky," but tell them to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is an infallible remedy for "female weaknesses."

"Favorite Prescription" has cured thousands of poor, bed-ridden suffering women of "female weakness," painful irregularities, ulcerations, organic displacements and kindred ailments too numerous to mention. THE WORLD'S LONG TUNNELS.

SOME OF THE FAMOUS SHAFTS THAT ENGINEERS HAVE MADE.

On the St. Gothard Railway, not far srom the famous long tunnel, there is a remarkable tunnel on the plan of a corkscrew. In the descent of the mountain it was found impossible to lay out a safe decline on a straight line or ordinary curve, and the engineers got over the difficulty by driving a tunnel which enters the mountain high on the side, describing a circle through the solid rock, constantly descending as it does so, reappears under itself on the mountain side some distance below, then dives into the rock, again circles and sinks as it circles until it again emerges into daylight under itself, when the line resumes its course down hill in a more familiar way.

The making of a tunnel like this is as striking an example of engineering skill as the world can show, and many very skillful things have been done by our railway makers. The art of tunneling is an old one, but it never attained such perfection as distinguishes it to day.

There is a wonderful tunnel at Chicago, driven in 1866, two miles out under the bottom of the lake, so that the city may obtain a water supply free from the refuse of the city. This tunnel, which has now been doubled, has two shafts, one on land and one in the bed of the lake, rising through a crib, which crib is defended by a breakwater, and serves as the foundation of a lighthouse. This was a difficult work to manage, owing to its being through clay and quicksand, but a mere nothing as to length. There is, for instance, the Croton aqueduct, from Croton down to New York, which is driven through solid rock for thirty-six and a quarter miles. The Hoosac tunnel is four and three-quarter miles in length and is twenty-six feet wide and twenty-one and a half feet high.

In Peru, on the Lima and Oroyo Railroad, there are sixty tunnels in a hundred miles, the longest being on the summit of the pass through the Andes. This tunnel is two miles higher above the sea level than either the St. Gothard or Mount Cenis, and all the tools and stores and food had to be carried up the mountains on mule back.

When canals were introduced into Europe, tunnels became necessary to avoid excessive lockage, and with the railways tunnels became quite common. Of the older railway tunnels in England, the longest is the Woo Head, on the Manchester and Leeds line, which is three miles long, and consists of two parallel tunnels, one for each track.—Boy's Own Paper.

Annual Report of the Late Superintendent, E. E. Higbee.

THERE ARE NOW 21,889 SCHOOLS IN THE STATE—INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR, 547—RECOMMENDATIONS MADE. COMPLAINTS OF SMALL SALARIES.

The annual report of the late superintendent of Public Instruction, Professor E. E. Higbee, which was submitted to the Governor on December 4, has been made public. It is very brief as compared with previous reports, made so, as Dr. Higbee explained, because the Legislature will not be in session, and there is no need to make suggestions for legislation. In his report Superintendent Higbee says:

THE PRESENT NUMBER OF SCHOOLS.

"The schools now number 21,889, an increase since last year of 547. The increase of the previous year was only 280.

"The increase in number of pupils is 13,176, differing little from the increase of the previous year.

"To meet this increase of pupils we have, as just stated, 547 additional schools. This shows a tendency towards better school accommodations, for it gives to each additional school only twenty-four pupils, while the general average of pupils per school is slightly beyond forty-three. The average, however, is far too high and there must be many crowded schools in the State, but it is encouraging to know that the movement is in the right direction.

"There has been a very large increase in the number of graded schools during the year, viz: 546.

"The whole number of graded schools is now 10,117, nearly one-half of all our schools. This rapid increase of graded schools demands most careful watchfulness upon the part of superintendents and teachers. While we have the great gain derived from such division of labor as the graded school secures we must seek to avoid the serious dangers involved.

PROMOTION NOT THE OBJECT.

"Teachers confined to one line of studies and those that are suited only to a certain age are apt to take into view only the small section of a child's life belonging to that age, and this weakens the great incentive to work, which comes from the clear vision of the end of education in the beginning. The end is not the examination for promotion to another grade. The solid culture of the child toward a well furnished personality, a developed, intelligent life of thought and act, must be the main aim of all teaching; and this should not be broken in upon by any interruption of artificial grades. Hence, great caution is required in graded schools, lest, through anxiety to promote from grade to grade, the child be fitted more for examination than for life.

TEACHERS' SALARIES VERY SMALL.

"The increase in the salary of teachers has been very small. Now that the amount appropriated by the State is two millions—double what it was four years ago—it is to be hoped that the average salary of teachers will be greatly enlarged. It is now for male teachers only $39 per month and for female teachers only a little over $30. This want of proper remuneration is injuring the status of our schools. It is retarding the whole educational work of the State, and every exertion should be made to remedy this defect. Direct legislation can effect but little. Public sentiment must be aroused. Directors and parents must realize the vast importance of our schools and the great responsibility of our teachers, and refuse to make them nothing more than the employment of the cheapest candidates in the market.

"Our superintendents also must make the provisional certificates fewer and fewer, demanding high grades and insisting on more thorough examinations. By concerted action the way may be opened for a better condition of affairs as regards salaries and tenure of office. While thankful for the legislation secured in behalf of the schools, we regret very much that the bill for a closer supervision of our schools in rural districts failed of passage.

CLOSER SUPERVISION NECESSARY.

"Closer supervision is so necessary that it must soon come. The need of it becomes more apparent every day, and very many directors are only waiting for authority to organize the work. There are many advances yet to be made before the full efficiency of our system of free public schools can be secured, to which we shall have occasion to refer hereafter.

The report closes with the thanks of the Superintendent to his co-workers in the cause of education.

What One Should Not Do.

Things that a well bred man doesn't do:

He doesn't wear large check clothes.

He doesn't use perfumes.

He doesn't beg a woman's pardon for neglecting to call on her.

He doesn't criticise one woman to another.

He isn't always trying to tell a good story or make a brilliant remark.

He doesn't make gifts that he can't afford.

He doesn't try to turn a compliment with every breath he draws in a woman's presence.

He doesn't use a crest on his writing paper.

He doesn't take his women friends into his business or love matters.

He doesn't ask to be allowed to smoke in the presence of a woman, unless he is morally certain she does not object to it.

Ringng Noises.

In the ears, sometimes a roaring buzzing sound are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

CATARRH,

Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 West King St., Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

Letter From Dr. Ammerman.

GREENWOOD, DELAWARE,
Dec. 23rd, 1889.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN:

It has been some time since I last wrote you, and as I receive the COLUMBIAN regularly every week and read the doings of my former acquaintances and friends, it may be they might be interested in a short letter from the Diamond State.

This has been an eventful year. Nearly every paper we read chronicles disaster, want, or misfortune in some way or place. The most common and probably the most destructive has been that caused by the great amount of rain during the year. We have had a very wet season here.

Our corn crop was considerably damaged. Wheat crops were good, but somewhat damaged before it could be threshed. Hundreds of tons of hay were ruined while trying to cut it. Fruit was imperfect and rotted badly on account of the continued wet weather. Sweet potatoes were a good crop, Irish potatoes fair.

The farmer has had a hard time trying to raise good crops with but little recompense for his labor, yet we are thankful that it is as well as it is. We have not been visited by any tornados or destructive floods and no lives have been lost "inland" from such cause, although there was considerable loss of life and property along the Atlantic Coast at Lewes and other points not over thirty miles from here.

December has been the nicest month of the year, slightly cold in the beginning with but little rain. The last week has been one of delightful sunshine, mild as spring. Our roads are in excellent condition. I drove twenty-five miles this afternoon and did not find one mile of the distance that my horse could not keep up a brisk trot.

Have had no freezing for the past ten days and the roads are becoming dusty in many places.

We are glad to see this fine weather but would prefer it colder as there is danger of the peach buds enlarging so as to be caught by the colder weather if it comes, and if Devoe's predictions are correct we may expect to catch it after awhile.

The prospect for fruit another year is very good if the winter is not too severe; trees have made a fine growth of new wood and the crop being light last year gives them a double advantage for the next. We have 2,000 that we planted since we came here that bore some very fine peaches this year, and as they are now four years old and capable of bearing a fair crop we are anxious to have a good fruit year, "Strange, isn't it."

We were much pleased a couple of weeks ago to have our old friends Samuel and J. Hervey Hartzel, of Light Street call on us' they spent over a week with friends here and in the time rented a farm for a year. They expect to make Delaware their future home, and in the year's time will have an opportunity to buy a farm to suit them. There are a number of fine farm that can be bought, and they are wise in laying in the shade a little while for them.

Our town is rapidly building up; six fine dwelling houses have been erected this summer and the P. W. & B. R. R. have built a handsome new depot which is an ornament to the town.

All our Penna. friends here are well as far as I know, and are apparently well content. Not withstanding their crops not having been what they desired, they seem cheerful and are looking forward to the future for better things there has been but little sickness during the year; have had no epidemics of any kind.

If this fine weather continues a while longer our farmers will get a very good start on the work of next year and thereby be able to increase the tillage of the already anticipated large Crop.

Wishing our Columbia County friends a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Will close.

Very truly yours,
C. W. AMMERMAN.

Medical Value of Wines.

As a general rule the use of wine is not necessary for young persons in good health, breathing country air and not exposed to over work. As, however, life advances and the circulation becomes languid, natural red wine used in moderation, becomes an essential article and in many cases absolutely necessary, but it must be the pure product of the grapes. And even in the Eastern States the physician meets large numbers of town people, especially women, who can not digest the food and drinks suited to out door laboring people. In such cases they resort to the beverage of tea which gives rise to a distressing dyspepsia. The wines produced in New Jersey, especially the Burgundy and the Port Grape Wines from Alfred Speer's Vineyard's at Passaic, are the more reliable and the most sought after by physicians and those who have traveled abroad and knows what wines are. ALFRED SPEER, PASSAIC, N. J.

DEAR SIR:—I have used your Socialite Claret and your Port Wine in my practice with great satisfaction.
